

ABSTRACT

A scooter with a rear wheel suspension which acts between a chassis of the scooter and a support and which is pivotally attached to the chassis. The suspension includes a damper and a coil spring of adjustable compression and is placed under increasing load, with a progressively increasing load/deflection characteristic, when the chassis moves downwardly relatively to the rear wheel.